Introduction

In a world in which economies and societies are so closely interlinked, the value to businesses of internationally recognised qualifications cannot be over-estimated.

EDI recognises the importance of providing valid and reliable qualifications that cross national boundaries, and are acceptable anywhere in the world as evidence of competence and achievement.

London Chamber of Commerce and Industry (LCCI) International Qualifications have been serving the international community since 1887, and are accredited and recognised by an increasing number of governments. They are also used as benchmarks for employers around the world, and for entry to higher education.

EDI is committed to continuing to work with governments and regulatory authorities everywhere to ensure that LCCI International Qualifications meet the highest standards.

This document has been created as a user-friendly source of reference for EDI's official accreditations and recognitions.

About EDI

EDI was founded on 20 December 2002 through the merger of Goal plc and the London Chamber of Commerce and Industry Examinations Board.

EDI is now a leading UK awarding body and education services company, providing vocational and professional qualifications globally. As a leading awarding body of international qualifications, EDI works in partnership with private training providers, colleges and other educational organisations around the world. EDI provides online pupil and strategic performance measures to schools and colleges. The success of EDI is built on placing customers' educational needs central to its business strategy, providing excellent customer service and commitment to the latest technology to deliver innovative education solutions to our partners.

Through the brand London Chamber of Commerce and Industry International Qualifications (LCCI IQ), EDI is recognised and valued by private training providers, employers, governments, academic institutions and students the world over.

Awarding Body Accreditation

The maintenance of public confidence in qualifications is crucial. In the UK, there are statutory regulations to ensure consistently high standards. These regulations are enforced in England by the Office of the Qualifications and Examinations Regulator (Ofqual).

EDI is one of the UK's top five awarding bodies, fully accredited by the following regulatory bodies to develop and award qualifications:

- Office of the Qualifications and Examinations Regulator (Ofqual) in England
- Council for Curriculum, Examinations and Assessment (CCEA) in Northern Ireland
- Scottish Qualifications Authority (SQA)
- Department for Children, Education, Lifelong Learning and Skills (DCELLS) in Wales

EDI is accredited to offer qualifications on the basis of having satisfied the Regulatory Authorities that it has the resources, systems and procedures in place to ensure the delivery of high quality qualifications within the UK National Qualification Framework (NQF) and the Qualifications Credit Framework (QCF). Accreditation includes the authority to offer General and Vocational Qualifications in England, Wales and Northern Ireland and General and Scottish Vocational Qualifications in Scotland.

International Accreditations

LCCI International Qualifications are offered in over 120 countries.

It is EDI's policy to work as closely as possible with governments and regulatory authorities, and wherever possible to achieve formal accreditation.

Recognition by institutions of higher learning

Each year thousands of LCCI IQ students aspire to enter higher learning. EDI is committed to ensuring that LCCI International Qualifications offer progression routes.

The following categories of recognition are in force:

General entrance

The majority of universities in the UK accept LCCI IQs as satisfying general entry requirements. Individual institutions will be able to confirm that this is the case. In addition a number of institutions in Australia, Brazil, Italy, Malaysia and many other countries also accept LCCI IQs as satisfying general entry criteria.

Specific English language requirements

A majority of universities, both in the UK and overseas, accept LCCI English Language qualifications as satisfying the language requirements for candidates whose first language is not English. The following qualifications are listed on the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS) website (www.ucas.com/studyuk/englang.html) as evidence of a suitable level of language proficiency:

- English for Business (EFB) - pass at Level 3
- English for Commerce (EFC) - pass at Level 3
- Spoken English for Industry and Commerce (SEFIC) - pass at Level 3
- English Language Skills Assessment (ELSA) Reading & Listening - test score of 383/500

Across Europe, LCCI English Language qualifications are recognised by universities and institutions of higher learning, including the University of Pavia (Italy) and the Verussakademie in Baden-Wurttemberg (Germany), as credit bearing modules as part of the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS). This assists higher education establishments in having a clearer understanding of comparative levels of language proficiency, across the continent.

The integration of LCCI IQs into the ECTS is aided by their alignment to the Common European Framework (CEF), which enables comparison of language qualifications across European centres with differing national education standards. For detailed information on the alignment of our English Language qualifications to the CEF, please visit our website, www.lcci.org.uk.

LCCI English Language qualifications are also accepted for entry into specific programmes, such as the Masters and PhD programmes offered by UNESP (Universidade Estadual Paulista) in Sao Paulo Brazil.

A list of institutions of higher learning accepting LCCI IQs as evidence of meeting general or specific English Language requirements can be found in Appendix 1.

Exemptions

A number of institutions have confirmed that they will exempt holders of LCCI Level 4 qualifications in Business and English Language from modules in year one of a degree course.

Recognition by professional bodies

In addition to progression routes to higher education, LCCI International Qualifications are also recognised for entry into professional bodies.

The following is a selection of international professional associations whose entry examinations are waived for holders of LCCI IQs.

Organisation	Recognition
Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA)	Exemptions granted for one or more modules (T1, T2, T3, T4 & T6) of the Certified Accounting Technician Scheme to holders of LCCI Levels 3 and 4 single subject certificates in relevant fields. Additionally, holders of both Level 3 Accounting and Level 4 Financial Accounting (including IAS versions) will be exempted from Paper F1 of the ACCA Professional qualification
Chartered Institute of Management Accountants (CIMA)	Various Level 3 & 4 qualifications acceptable for exemption purposes from similar subjects within CIMA
Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (CIPD)	The institute offers exemptions to holders of LCCI IQs in similar subjects with evidence of previous experience

For a fuller list of professional bodies accepting LCCI IQs for exemptions to entry requirements see Appendix 2.

Corporate partnerships

As well as the formal status conferred on them by government and regulators, LCCI International Qualifications are also endorsed by a number of large employers and industrial associations.

The high value placed on the qualifications is attributable to their relevance to the modern business environment and to their practical applications.

LCCI IQs form a crucial part of corporate training schemes as well as skills auditing and recruitment programmes. They are also recognised by employers the world over as excellent routes into employment in their own right.

Organisation	Recognition
BASF, Oracle, (Latin America)	Oracle and BASF use LCCI IQs in English Language to help assess and celebrate the effectiveness of in-company training schemes. This testing has been introduced to their operations across Latin America
Daimler-Chrysler (Italy)	Daimler-Chrysler have introduced LCCI IQs in business English as the final qualification in their in-company training schemes
